Our Scholar in Residence Rabbi Menachem Creditor

Menachem Creditor served as Assistant Rabbi at Temple Israel from 2002 to 2007 and as Rabbi of Congregation Netivot Shalom in Berkeley, California from 2007 to 2018.

In 2018 he was named Pearl and Ira Meyer Scholar-in-Residence of UJA-Federation of New York and was the founder of Rabbis Against Gun Violence. Named by Newsweek as one of the 50 most influential rabbis in America, he is an acclaimed author, musician, teacher and activist who has worked to amplify the prophetic Jewish voice in the world. His books include "Peace in Our Cities: Rabbis Against Gun Violence", "The Hope: American Jewish Voices in Support of Israel", "Fierce Feelings: Poems", "Siddur Tov LeHodot: A Transliterated Shabbat Prayerbook", and "When We Turned Within." He and his wife Neshama Carlebach live in New York, where they are raising their five children.

Shabbat Services Topic: "Proximity & Power: The Difficulty Being an Effective Problem-Solver from a Distance"

Sunday Morning Breakfast Topic: "Fault Lines: Exploring the Complicated Place of Progressive American Jewish Zionism"
